

AirSick 101

AIRBRUSH TRAINING

Hands On - How to Hold an Airbrush

Learning to hold an airbrush correctly is the first step in your airbrushing journey. If you're right handed start by taking the airbrush in your left hand, draping the hose over and around your right arm. Now place the airbrush in your right hand like in the photos below.

Your index finger should sit lightly on the trigger, with the rest of your hand supporting the brush. Take your left hand and cup it around your right. Your hand should rest comfortably in your palm.

Holding the airbrush this way helps to stabilize your movements. As you progress you will be able to accurately control the flow of paint and where it's going with more and more precision. In time you'll be painting blindfolded, with one hand tied behind your back. Ok well maybe not, but you'll never know if you don't practice!

AirSick 101

AIRBRUSH TRAINING

Hands On - How to Hold an Airbrush

Learning to hold an airbrush correctly is the first step in your airbrushing journey. If you're right handed start by taking the airbrush in your left hand, draping the hose over and around your right arm. Now place the airbrush in your right hand like in the photos below.

Your index finger should sit lightly on the trigger, with the rest of your hand supporting the brush. Take your left hand and cup it around your right. Your hand should rest comfortably in your palm.

Holding the airbrush this way helps to stabilize your movements. As you progress you will be able to accurately control the flow of paint and where it's going with more and more precision. In time you'll be painting blindfolded, with one hand tied behind your back. Ok well maybe not, but you'll never know if you don't practice!